To Whom It May Concern:

My name is Coby Benveniste and I currently live in Tel Aviv, Israel. Before moving to Israel, I worked in Atlanta, GA (my home town) as a freelance software developer for some time at various companies, learning as many skills as I could.

Since moving to Tel Aviv, I have been working as a Software Developer/Data Scientist and Senior Tableau Expert at Signals Analytics, a market intelligence company that works to provide insights to clients in various ecosystems. Additionally, I continue to hone my programming and software development skills by working on side projects with my friends, such as crypto-currency trading bots, web scraping libraries, and more.

As a Software Developer, I've learned how to pick up various technologies very quickly, and how to collaborate with other team members in order to develop innovative solutions. As a Tableau Expert, I learned how to create user-friendly interactive dashboards and visualizations for various types of data sets. As a Data Scientist, I've learned how to create ranks, scores, and visuals to answer business questions.

As my resume shows, I have acquired significant experience in the field of software development. I have gained considerable experience for my age working in the private sector, and have proven that I am a valuable asset and a team player. I have several years of experience programming in many backend programming languages including C#, Python, Ruby, Elixir, along with some web development experience using HTML, JavaScript, and CSS. I also have extensive experience using Tableau to create models to answer various business questions, and have worked utilizing SQL on several different database projects, creating data structures and schemas to store large amounts of data and query it in efficient ways.

But enough about my previous work and experience, you want to know why I would be a fit at your company. Let me explain to you a little about who I am. I'm a serial innovator, and I love learning new things and coming up with solutions to problems. One of the most important things to me is personal and professional growth. I want to find a place that embraces growth and self-starters who see a problem and try to fix it, unprompted. I want to work on a team with people who can teach me incredible things, and from what I've read about the company culture, I believe that the people who work there are the same as I am.

I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,

Coby Benveniste
